Nairobi National Park - Half Day Tour (Minimum 2 people)

US$ 125.00 per person

Nairobi is the only city in the world, which neighbours a natural game protection area, harbouring over 100 species of mammals. The 113km² Park located in the city centre is Kenya's first National Park. It borders the traditional South Kapiti Plains and Kitengela Migration Corridor and attracts a range of exciting game. It is a seasonal park but most of the game like Kenya's indigenous Black Rhino, live in the protection of the Park year round. Herds of plains zebra, wildebeest and eland enter the park during the great migration in July and August to enjoy the rich grazing until the next rains come. In recent years a unique trend has been recorded - with increasing frequency a cheetah has successfully raised 7 cubs in the Park. It is the site of President Daniel Arap Moi's dramatic ivory bonfire, when, in 1989, he torched 10 tons of ivory worth KSH60 million, in a bid to eliminate the mass slaughter of Africa's elephants for their tusks. The site is near the main gate of the Park and bears a commemorative plaque with the legendary words "Great objectives often require great sacrifices." Ironically, there are no elephants in Nairobi National Park!
